GENERAL SOCIAL QUESTIONS

Declaration on Social Progress and Development (August 1989)
Vienna (E,F,S,R,C,A,G)

The Declaration, adopted on 11 December 1969 by the United Nations General Assembly, defines the principles of social development, its objectives, and the methods and means of achieving those objectives. Following the decision of the General Assembly to observe in 1989 the twentieth anniversary of the Declaration, the text of the Declaration has been re-issued in all official United Nations languages. In addition, a German translation is also available at Vienna.

The United Nations Social Agenda
Vienna (E,F,S)

Illustrated pamphlet that provides non-governmental organizations and other interested bodies and individuals with briefs on social issues being dealt with by the United Nations system. The first issue deals with illiteracy, the rights of children, AIDS, advancement of women, and the twentieth anniversary of the Declaration on Social Progress and Development. Successive issues of this pamphlet will address other important aspects of social development, including aging, disabled, youth and crime.

International Social Development Review Vienna (E,F,S)

After a break of almost 10 years, this journal will resume publication in 1990. It will be designed to meet the needs of policy practitioners and academic specialists interested in public policy matters. Articles will discuss contemporary and anticipated policy problems associated with social development throughout the world. The journal's aim is to facilitate the exchange of views between persons working in different regions, institutions or disciplines.

Social Development Newsletter
Vienna (E,F,S)

Reflects the activities of the United Nations Centre for Social Development and Humanitarian Affairs in the area of social development. Recent issues were devoted to a specific theme related to the United Nations social development programme.

No. 22, 1985

No. 23, Volume 1986-1
Special issue on social development in Africa. Subjects dealt with include the situation of youth, the elderly and disabled persons in Africa; the family and the development process; preparations, in the African region, for the Interregional Consultation on Developmental Social Welfare Policies and Programmes; crime prevention and criminal justice; and United Nations Trust Fund Activities in Africa.

No. 24, Volume 1986-2
Deals with activities of non-governmental organizations in the various social development fields, including social integration and welfare, advancement of specific population groups, and crime prevention and criminal justice.

No. 25, Volume 1987-1
Special issue on the Interregional Consultation on Developmental Social Welfare Policies and Programmes (Part I). Includes the Guiding Principles for Developmental Social Welfare Policies and Programmes in the Near Future; a summary of discussion in plenary; statements made during the Consultation; and the Report on the Panel of Non-Governmental Organizations.

No. 26, Volume 1987-2
Special issue on the Interregional Consultation on Developmental Social Welfare Policies and Programmes (Part II). Contains regional reports on the social welfare situation in all parts of the world.

No. 27, 1989 -1
Special issue on the role of co-operatives in the production, marketing and consumption of food.

Social Policy in Transition: Adjusting to the Needs of the 1990s
E.89.IV.8 Vienna (E, S, F, R, A)
(ST/CSDHA/4)

The report contains the background studies prepared by the Secretary-General and an analysis of governmental statements presented to the Interregional Consultation on Developmental Social welfare Policies and Programmes (Vienna, September 1987). This was the first global meeting of ministers and senior policy makers concerned with social and social welfare issues since 1968. The background studies deal respectively with broad issues of policy in the context of changing socio-economic conditions, and social policies and welfare programmes, particularly in a developmental context. The two studies, together with the analysis of governmental statements, provide and up-to-date and authoritative synthesis of the main issues and government perceptions of social policy and the nature of relationships between social and other policy spheres, together with views on a large number of practical issues facing social policy formulation and implementation in contemporary society.

POPULAR PARTICIPATION

Popular Participation in Decision-Making for Development
E.75.IV.10 (ST/ESA/36)

Study reviews and analyses the concept of popular participation and its implications for national development policies. Presents basic issues and policy guidelines which can be derived from the national experience considered, and discusses relationship between popular participation at national, regional and local levels.

A Manual and Resource Book for Popular Participation Training. Volumes I-IV
E.78.IV.4-7 (ST/ESA/66)

Provides trainers in integrated rural development programmes with guidelines on the dissemination of ideas, the exchange of knowledge about training and the testing of new approaches and techniques. Volume I includes an introduction to the subject and bibliographic information; Volume II reviews and analyses selected national experience in innovative training activities for promoting popular participation; Volume III describes a number of innovative training approaches; and Volume IV reviews techniques applicable to popular participation training.

Popular Participation as a Strategy for Promoting Community Level Action and National Development
E.81.IV.2 Vienna (E)
(ST/ESA/114)

Report of the meeting of the Ad Hoc Group of Experts held at United Nations Headquarters in May 1978, with the purpose to promote exchange of knowledge and experience with regard to innovative programmes and practices in furthering popular participation in development. Deals with the concept and practice of development, nature and scope of popular participation in development, popular participation and the New International Economic Order, rural development, development planning, development administration, and women and popular participation in development.

Economic Recession and Specific Population Groups
E.86.IV.4 Vienna (E,F,S,A)
(ST/ESA/156)

Deals with the impact of international stagnation and recession on specific population groups, especially during 1973-1975 and 1981-1983. Also reviews the effects of changes in global employment, income distribution, and solidarity on youth and the aged.

Popular Participation in Selected Upgrading Programmes in Urban Areas
E.86.IV.8 Vienna (E,F,S)
(ST/ESA/179)

Study provides planners and policy-makers with information on methods adopted to promote community participation in the formulation of programmes.

Popular Participation Policies as Methods for Advancing Social Integration
E.87.IV.3 Vienna (E,F,S)
(ST/ESA/190)

Study addressed primarily to policy makers, planners and academic centres working in this field and based on regional and national experience in developing countries, with special attention to social problems of the African countries. Study considers both obstacles and approaches to social integration through people's participation in decision-making processes.

Report of the Seminar on the Role of Government in Promoting the Co-operative Movement in Developing Countries
(Moscow, USSR, 18-22 May 1987)
Vienna (E,F,S)

The report analyzes various aspects of government support to co-operatives and reaffirms the important role of governments in promoting the co-operative movement in most developing countries. It contains recommendations on how to strengthen co-operatives at the local, regional, national and international levels. It includes as an annex a global review of the role of co-operatives in economic and social development, prepared by the International Co-operative Alliance.

SOCIAL WELFARE POLICIES AND PROGRAMMES

Development at Grass Roots. Training of Front-Line Personnel in Social Welfare
(Out of print. A limited number of copies in English is still available at Vienna.)
E.80.IV.4 Vienna (E)
(ST/ESA/104)

Analyzes policies and programmes concerned with training of front-line social welfare personnel, reviews their tasks and roles in different development contexts, and considers relationships between training policies and programmes and national development initiatives. Provides a basis for a review and analysis of training needs and activities.

Deals specifically with development strategies and the role of social welfare, and objectives and organizational aspects of social welfare activities for promoting a more viable level of economic self-reliance among the poorest. Includes the report of the expert group meeting.

Administration of Social Welfare. A Survey of National Organizational Arrangements. E.85.IV.1 Vienna (E)
(ST/ESA/147)

Surveys various national social welfare programmes in different areas of the world. Addresses some priority issues of social welfare administration, including insufficient funding and political backing; coordination, efficiency and effectiveness; decentralization and devolution; and the need for tapping traditional resources and for adapting present structures to meet current development needs most effectively and economically.

Developmental Social Welfare. A global survey of issues and priorities since 1968.
E.86.IV.6 Vienna (E,F,S)
(ST/ESA/173)

Survey intended for policy makers, planners and administrators at the national level, non-governmental social welfare organizations, academics and social welfare personnel in general, to assist them in translating developmental social welfare policies into dynamic and effective programmes. The survey is based on the report of the Expert Group Meeting on Social Welfare in Development, organized by the United Nations Centre for Social Development and Humanitarian Affairs in 1981, on studies and reports of international and regional intergovernmental conferences, seminars, expert group meetings and workshops conducted by the United Nations and its regional commissions.

The Family. (No.1) Models for Providing Comprehensive Services for Family and Child Welfare
E.84.IV.2 Vienna (E,F,S)
(ST/ESA/138)

First in a series of publications entitled The Family that present a survey of findings and conclusions of recent research made in order to provide policy makers and development planners, especially in developing countries, with new perspectives on families and on ways in which families may affect and be affected by the development process, in particular, by modernization, urbanization and industrialization. Contains case studies and analyses of different methods of providing child and family welfare services.

The Family. (No. 2) The Role of the Family in the Development Process
E.86.IV.7 Vienna (E,F,S)
(ST/ESA/172)

Guiding Principles for Developmental Social Welfare Policies and Programmes in the Near Future, adopted by the Interregional Consultation on Developmental Social Welfare Policies and Programmes, held in Vienna, from 7 to 15 September 1987.
Vienna (E,F,S)

The Principles set forth recommendations for action at the national, regional and international levels. Endorsed by the United Nations General Assembly in December 1987. They constitute the major international instrument for work in the area of social welfare for the 1990s and beyond.

THE ELDERLY

Report of the World Assembly on Aging
E.82.I.16 Vienna (E,F,S,R,C,A)

The report outlines the historical background and organizational arrangements of the World Assembly on Aging held at Vienna in 1982. It summarizes its general debate and includes, in full, the International Plan of Action on Aging which the Assembly adopted.

Vienna International Plan of Action on Aging
Vienna (E,F,S,G)

The International Plan of Action on Aging - containing 62 recommendations - was adopted by the 1982 World Assembly on Aging and subsequently, the same year, was endorsed by the United Nations General Assembly. It is the first internationally recognized instrument in the field of aging. It considers the national, regional and international dimensions of aging as well as demographic, developmental and humanitarian ones. It elaborates on seven sectoral issues related to aging: health, housing and environment, social welfare, income security and employment, education, consumer protection, and the family. Though primarily addressed to Governments, the Plan envisages an active role by non-governmental organizations.

The World Aging Situation: Strategies and Policies
E.85.IV.5 Vienna (E)
(ST/ESA/150)

This 300 page volume, based on United Nations indicators and publications on aging as well as on the documents of the 1982 World Assembly on Aging, presents an overview of strategies and policies in the field of aging. Part one focuses on global demographic change, general aging issues and policy options encompassing such sectors as health and nutrition, housing and environment, the family, social welfare, income security, employment, and education. Part two examines aging at world regional and subregional levels, and gives illustrative examples from individual countries.

The first review and appraisal of the implementation of the International Plan of Action on Aging: Report of the Secretary-General
(E/1985/6) Vienna (E,F,S,R)

The second review and appraisal of the implementation of the International Plan of Action on Aging: Report of the Secretary-General
(E/1989/13) Vienna (E,F,S,R)

In 1985 and 1989 the above two reports were submitted to both the Commission for Social Development and the Economic and Social Council. They contain analyses of experiences in implementing the Plan as reported by States, United Nations specialized agencies and bodies and non-governmental organizations. The first report gives equal attention to humanitarian and developmental concerns -- the needs of individual elderly on the one hand and society-wide adjustments to an aging population on the other. The second report gives special emphasis to participation strategies for the elderly in development and to the need to penetrate the informal economy, in which the majority of the world's elderly function, if their living conditions are to be understood and ameliorated. Priorities for future national and international action are identified in both reports.

Report of the Interregional Seminar to Promote the Implementation of the International Plan of Action on Aging. (Kiev, Ukrainian SSR, September 1985)
E.86.IV.5 Vienna (E,F,S,R)

The Report covers the proceedings of a Seminar held at Kiev, Ukrainian SSR in September 1985, summarizing the situation of aging in some 20 developing countries as well as in centrally planned economies. It presents a set of recommendations for the further implementation of the Plan of Action at the global, regional and national levels.

Report of the International Seminar - Expert Group Meeting on Policies and Strategies for the Participation of the Elderly in Development
Vienna (E)

The Report includes the proceedings of a Seminar held at Rabat, Malta in February 1988 at which discussions focused on the participation of the elderly in community, rural and economic development as well as their participation in work, family support, health support and political activities. The Seminar's recommendations are included.
